

Inventor's Claim

The claim of my invention is that I have developed a unique concept for an automatic ball mark retrieval system that is incorporated as a component of the golf divot repair tool system. The idea only pertains to the way the divot tool performs by linking the ball mark and the divot repair tool automatically, while in the golfers pocket without the necessity of manually placing the ball mark on the divot repair tool. Therefore, giving the golfer the convenience of finding the small mark automatically attaching to the larger divot repair tool.
